

Super short:

Jeromin Zettelmeyer is a senior fellow of the Peterson Institute for International Economics, a CEPR research fellow, and a member of CESifo. He previously served as Director-General for Economic Policy at the German Ministry for Economic Affairs (2014-2016), Director of Research and Deputy Chief Economist at the European Bank for Reconstruction and Development (2008–2014) and as staff member of the International Monetary Fund (1994–2008). His research interests include financial crises, sovereign debt and economic growth.

Jeromin Zettelmeyer is a senior fellow of the Peterson Institute for International Economics, a CEPR research fellow, and a member of CESifo. From 2014 until September of 2016, he served as Director-General for Economic Policy at the German Federal Ministry for Economic Affairs and Energy. Previously, he was Director of Research and Deputy Chief Economist at the European Bank for Reconstruction and Development (2008–2014), and a staff member of the International Monetary Fund (1994-2008), where we worked in the research, Western Hemisphere, and European departments. He holds degrees from the University of Bonn and MIT (Ph.D. 1994). His research interests include financial crises, sovereign debt and economic growth.